Mobility Effects on Network

Sponsored by Aruba and Zebra

Q.1

When your organization is ready to purchase a new mobility solution, how likely is it that your budget will include networking (e.g., to ensure your network remains accessible and secure as traffic demands increase)?

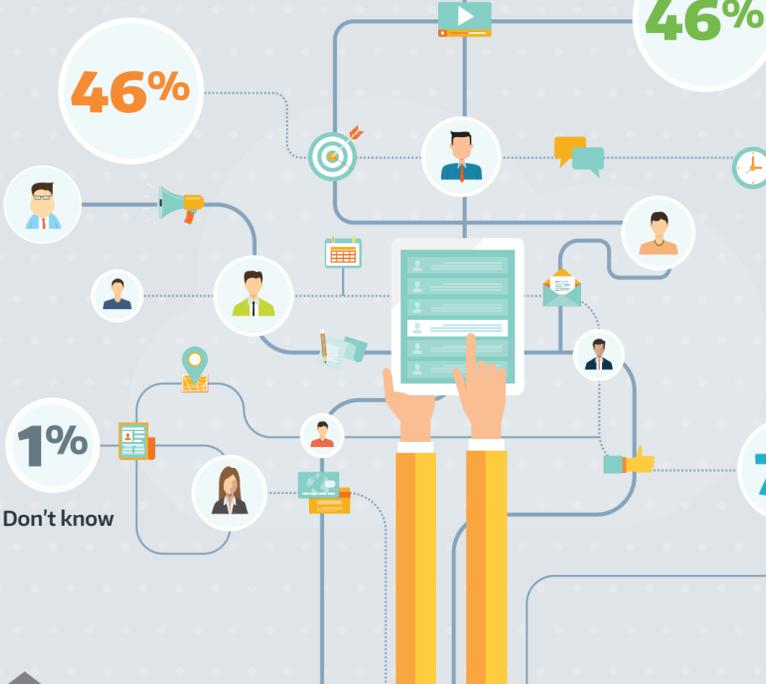

Meeting network traffic demands is important. The majority (94%) are highly likely to include networking in the budget when purchasing new mobility solutions.

Q.2

Is your company aware of the impact that mobile computers, rugged smartphones, RFID readers, tablets, etc. will have on your network?

Yes, we've had a site survey done to determine whether our network can support a new mobility solution.

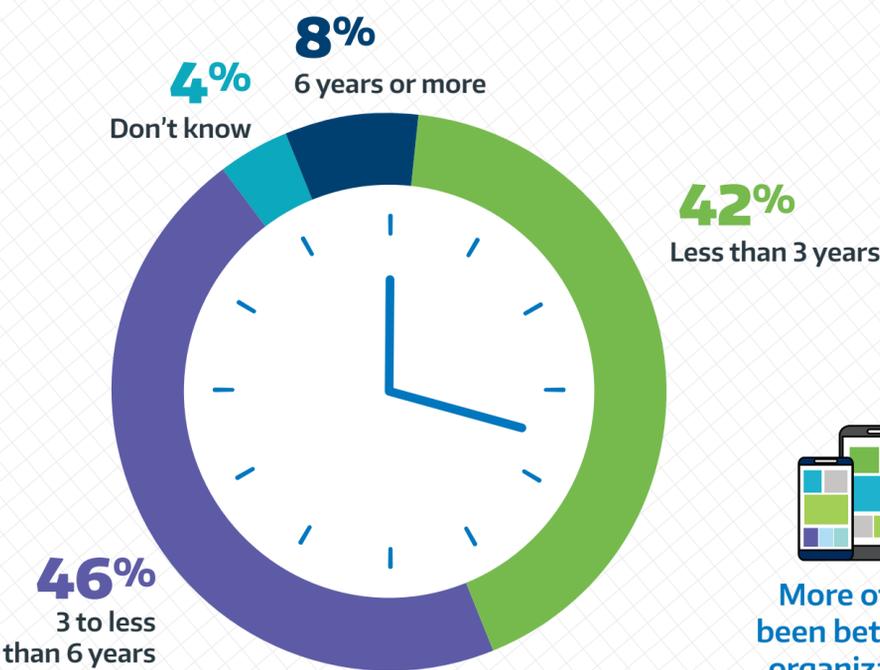

Yes, while we haven't had a site survey done, we've researched the potential impact of a new mobility solution on our network.

Most organizations (92%) have some level of awareness on the impact of mobile devices on their network.

No, we don't have all of the necessary information to determine the impact a new mobility solution would have on our network.

Q.3

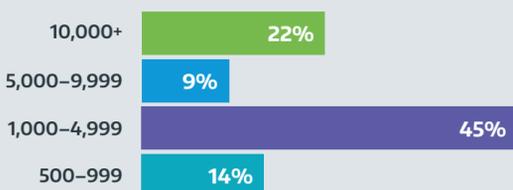

How long has it been since you replaced your mobile solutions (ex: POS, mobile computers, rugged smartphones, RFID readers, tablets)?

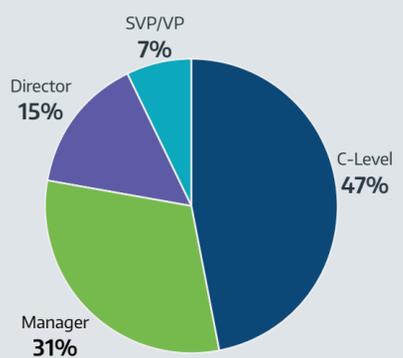

More often than not, it has been between 0-6 years since organizations have replaced their mobile solutions.
